In this unexpected and poignant drama, Reynaldo “El Piedra” Salgado is a once powerful boxer who, facing the end of his career, enters matches as “bait” – one who fights with no chance of winning. One day Breyder, a scrawny kid living on the streets in the outskirts of the coastal Caribbean city of Cartagena de Indias, shows up on the ex-champion’s doorstep claiming to be his son. As father and son learn to live together, Reynaldo begins to reconsider his own sense of self as Breyder learns to admire the father who values sacrifice above all else. *Spanish with subtitles. Featuring a livestream Q&A with director Rafael Martínez Moreno on the streaming platform at 8:15pm CT following the film.

Limited tickets are available. Film is unrated. Viewer discretion is advised.
